Presented by Shea Caplice

Labouring in water and water birth are becoming increasingly popular as women choose to labour and birth in pools or baths. Wherever a woman is planning to birth be it home, birth centre or hospital, the midwife has an important role in facilitating informed choice and bringing knowledge and skill to the support and care of women planning to labour and birth in water. This workshop explores the evidence relating to water birth, the physiology of birth in water and the implications for midwifery practice.
